High School Leadership Workshop

for Administrators, Athletic Directors,
Directors of Physical Education

PCA, founded in 1998 at Stanford University Department of Athletics, is a national program that provides trainings that support a positive, character-building youth sports culture. Using research-based techniques to improve performance while instilling the practice of "Honoring the Game," coaches will be able to prepare youth athletes for success in life both on and off the playing fields. Workshop topics:

- o Leadership and Culture Shaping
- o Elements of Positive Coaching Culture
- o Developing and Maintaining a Positive Culture
- o Structural Pillars for maintaining a Positive Culture over the long term
- o Scenarios featuring situations facing Athletic Directors and Administrators

This is the third workshop in the series. Attendance at the previous workshops not required.
